

Sources that Explore Issues on Globalization

Source	Description	Location
The Globalisation Guide (The Australian APEC Study Centre)	Created for students to help them explore globalization and formulate their own opinions about it.	http://www.globalisationguide.org/index.htm
InternationalEd.org (The Asia Society)	Provides a clearinghouse for various private and government efforts to improve educational responses to globalization. Includes an impressive annotated bibliography of classroom materials.	http://www.internationaled.org/home.htm
Population Reference Bureau (PRB)	Offers in-depth articles on demography-related topics like AIDS, aging, poverty, etc. plus a very thorough and useful "World Population Data Sheet."	http://www.prb.org/
The American Forum for Global Education	Offers 33 "occasional papers" on various issues of globalization, including ones on human rights, language and terrorism.	http://www.globaled.org/issues/index.html
united nations cyberschoolbus	Offers excellent materials and activities to help students explore globalization.	http://www.un.org/cyberschoolbus/briefing/globalization/index.htm
TeachGlobalEd.net	Presents modules on world regions and teaching topics and, for each, provides full annotations of recommended websites, print materials and other media.	http://www.coe.ohio-state.edu/globaled/home.cfm
Universal Rights Network	Celebrates the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by presenting people's stories, heroes, and related news items.	http://www.universalrights.net/
The Globalization Website (Emory University)	Offers elaborate sections on globalization debates, issues, people, news, books, and issues.	http://www.sociology.emory.edu/globalization/
World Learning	Promotes international exchanges, study abroad, language training, and teacher education.	http://www.worldlearning.org/
Globalization (Global Policy Forum)	Features sections that explore the globalization of law, politics, economics and culture.	http://www.globalpolicy.org/globaliz/

Compiled by Michael Roessler, 3.6.07.