

Water molecules in the air are slowed down by the cold glass and stick together in drops.